Let's have a look at what Prof. Dr. Zehra Neşe Kavak, who has experienced the need for support for revealing the power of women in all aspects of life in her own business life as a woman, a mother, a doctor, an educator and a manager, said. I believe that the first step should be in "the equality of the social gender as a requirement for democracy" while talking about March 8.

Representing half of the population, an equal women's benefiting from the opportunities in the society should be one of the main goals of governments. I wish that the Women's Day on March 8, when women enter their struggle for equality, development and a more powerful life all around Turkey, will bring health and happiness for our country and the women of the world.
